WE ASSIST PATENT ATTORNEYS

The complexity of European patent applications

Drafting European patent applications is a well-known, intricate process. With over 4 million European patent applications filed, patent attorneys are tasked with crafting clear, concise claims while ensuring the invention is thoroughly described. This challenge is not only time-consuming but also requires immense focus to get right the first time, as quality is paramount.

The pressure on attorneys

The intense focus required for drafting patent applications can take time away from other critical activities—whether it's spending time with clients, like guiding start-ups, or even drafting more applications to increase revenue. It often forces attorneys to make tough choices about how to spend their limited hours.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Empowering your expertise

You remain in full control of your patent draft. Redigendis acts as your assistant, allowing you to draft claim 1 manually while the system generates the dependent subclaims in an instant, based on your primary claim and figure descriptions. Every suggested subclaim is linked to its relevant section, making it easy for you to validate and adjust.

Subclaim generator

Redigendis' one-click subclaim generation proposes options based on your content. You remain the decision-maker, with the ability to accept, edit, or discard each suggestion.

Your expertise matters!

Redigendis respects the value of your expertise. While the tool accelerates your workflow, your knowledge and input is essential to drive the process from beginning to end. Redigendis never replaces the role of the European Patent Attorney, but aims to support you in this role instead.
